Shri Bhargava also stressed upon the need to have a correct picture on the imported micro-components of the "made in India" components, so that eventually entire component can be indigenously manufactured.

8.0 Mr. Sandilya viewed that some fundamental research work, without commercial consideration, should be done on the projects that are likely to spur the demand of automobiles in the future, as at present the demand for passenger cars is declining because of rising petrol prices and maintenance expenses etc.

9.0 Shri Arvind Kapur suggested that in view of the current down turn in the market, a re-calibration of demand would be required
